PROJECT OBJECTIVE
The objective and goal for this project is:

1) The development of an economic recovery and resilience plan (ERRP) in response to the COVID-19 pandemic and in support of the regional CEDS, and
2) Technical assistance for local governments, businesses, and other stakeholder organizations within the region, including potential response to notices of funding opportunities issued by various local, state, federal or non-profit entities as well as potential opportunities for creating remote job opportunities within the region.

These activities will support the region’s efforts to “prevent, prepare for, and respond to Coronavirus” and/or respond to “economic injury as a result of Coronavirus” by providing an avenue for job creation and recovery from the economic impacts of COVID-19 which will serve to diversify the economies of NW Colorado and will add to the resiliency of the region.

PROJECT SCOPE AND SPECIFICATIONS
The Project Scope and Specifications are:

Explore the following supply chains in the ERRP and formulate an effective plan to encourage businesses/job creation through them within the region:

- Rare earth elements derived from coal ash
- Carbon products and 3D printer ink from coal
- Polypropylene as a base product for medical fabric derived from coal, oil, and natural gas
- Non-woven medical fabrics and PPE
- Medications, antibiotics, medical reagents, and base chemicals
- Medical glass and disposables
- Identify opportunities to access remote jobs to aid in keeping displaced workers within the community.

Provide analysis of the industries above and provide a step-by-step process for seeding one or more of these industries in the region. The AGNC ERRP will accomplish the following:

- Identify the most feasible critical supply chain(s) to focus on for local economic resilience while contributing to national needs.
- Collaborate with local stakeholders to produce a job creation plan around new industries that diversify the local economy and facilitate clustering. This will enable AGNC to maximize the benefit of the new critical industries on existing businesses, while creating incentives for new businesses to locate in their region.
- Create an effective business model to ensure that the selected critical industries are profitable, self-sustaining, and contribute to the well-being of the local economy.
- Locate existing facilities that can be used for critical supply production and determine the work that will need to take place to retool them for the intended industry. This includes identifying opportunities to enhance designated Opportunity Zones.
- Determine the skill development and workforce training that the AGNC region needs to retrain displaced workers for critical industries while attracting young workers as well. This may include vocational programs, job recruiting efforts, and outreach with K-12 schools.
• Conduct a thorough analysis of the cost of bringing one or more of these industries to the AGNC region and a plan for funding its development.

• Create a management framework for the program and industry. This may involve an existing or new non-profit.

• Develop metrics for success. This will enable AGNC to ensure that the program remains successful and can be constantly improved.
